But where is the man that can live without dining? without love-What is passion but

POTENCY OF THE DOLLAR.

book in his hand, when death laid his hand upon him.

He was carried home to his splendid mansion. He was laid on a bed with a satin coveriet. The lawyer, the relations and the prescher were sent for. All day long he lay without speech, moving only his right hand, as though in the act of counting money.

At midnight he spoke.

He saked for a dollar, and they brought one to him, and lead and gaunt he laid up in his death-bed, and clutched it with the grip of death.

A shaded lamp stood on a table near the death-bed, and clutched it with the grip of death.

A shaded lamp stood on a table near the silken bed and lofty ceiling, all said gold! as plain as human lips can say it.

His hair and eyebrows were white. His cheeks sunken, and his lips thin and surrounded by wrinkles that indicate the passion of avarice. As he sat up in his bed with his neck bared and the silken coverlet wrapt about his lean frame, his white hair and eyebrows contrasting with his wasted and wrinkled face, he looked like a ghost. And there was life in his leaden eye—all that life was centered on the Dollar, which he gripped in his cleuched fist.

His wife, a pleasant faced, matronly woman, in his clenched fist.

His wife, a pleasant faced, matronly woman, was seated at the foot of the bed. His son, a young man of twenty-one, dressed in the last touch of fashion, sat by the lawyer. The lawyer aat before the table, pen in hand, and gold spectacles on his nose. There was a nuge parchment spread before him,

"Do you think he will make a will?" asked the son.

the son.
"Hardly compos mentis yet," was the whis-pered reply. "Wait, He'll be lucid after a pered reply. Walk, He II be liched after a while."

"My dear," said the wife, "had not I better send for a preacher?"
She rose and took her dying husband by the hand, but he did not mind. His eye was apon the dollar.

He was a rich man. He owned palaces on Walant and Chestnut street, and hovels and courts in the outskirts. He had iron mines in this state, copper mines on the lakes somewhere, he had goiden interests in California. His name was bright upon the record of twenty banks; he had a half dozen papers in his pay.

He knew but one crime—to be in debt without the power to pay.

He was a just man—the gallows and the jail always found in him a faithful and unhis cienched hand.
Of holy Dollar, object of his life-long pur-sult, what comfort hast thou for him now in suit, what comfort hast thou for him now in his pain of death.

At length the dead man revived and dictated his will. It was strange to see the mother and son and lawyer muttering—and sometimes wrangling—beside the bed of death. All the while the testator clenched the Dollar in his right hand.

While the will was being made, the preacher came—even he who held the pasional charge of the great church, whose pew doors bore saintly names on silver plates, and whose seats on Habbath day groaned beneath the weight of respectability, broadcloth and satis.

He came and said his prayer—decorous'y and in measured words—but never once did the dying man relax the hold of the dollar.

"Can't you read me something, say—quick, don't you see I'm going!" at length said the rich man, turning a fightened look toward the preacher.

rith man, turning a fightened look toward the preacher, whose cravat was of the whitest, took a book with a golden class from a marble table. And he read:

"And I say unto you it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God."

"Who said those words—who—who—who?" fairly shrieked the dying man, shaking the hand which dienched the Dollar, at the preacher's head.

preacher's head.

The preacher hastily turned over the leaf and did not reply.

"Why did you never tell me of this before? Why did you never preach from it as I sat in your church? Why? Why?

The preacher did not reply, but turned over another leaf. But the dying man would not be onjeted.

over another leaf. But the dying man would not be quieted.

"And it's easier for a camel to through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God, is it? Then whet's to become of me? Am not I rich? What tenant did I ever spare, or did I ever release? And you stood up Sunday after Sunday and preached to us, and mover said one word about the camel. Not a word about the

The prescher, in search of a consoling pas-nage, turned rapidly over the leaves, and in his confusion, came to this puseage, which he "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl

"Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howlifer your miseries that shall come upon you. Your gold and aliver is cankared, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you and shall not your flesh as it were fire, yo have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold the hire of the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept by frand cristly and the crise of them which have reaped are ensered into the care of the Lord of Sabbath."

"And vet you never presched that to me!"

"And yet you never presched that to me!"
shrinked the dying man.
The prescher who had blundered through the passage of James which we have quoted, knew not what to say."

Then the wife drew near and strove to com-fors him, and the son (who had been read-ing the will) attempted a word or two of con-solution.

When he was cold the preacher error and asked the lawyer whether the decreased had left snything to such a charitable society, which had been engrafied upon the preacher s church.

And the wife closed his eyes and tried to wrench the Dollar from his hand, but in vain. He clutched it as though it were the only Savior to light him through the darkness of eternity.

And the son sat down with dry eyes and thought of the hundreds of thousands which thought of the hundreds of thousands which were now his own.

Next day there was a hearse followed by a train of carriages nearly a mile in length. There was a crowd around the open grave and an elegant sermon on the virtues of the deceased by the preacher. There was futtering of crape badges, and rolling of carriages, and—no tears. They left the dead man and returned to the place where sorrow died even as the crape was taken from the door knob.

And in the grave the dead hand still lenched the dollar.

Thackeray on Humor and Music. Wm. M. Thackeray has the following in a late number of the Cornhill Magazina.

late number of the Cornhill Magasins.

When humor joins with rhythm and music and appears in song, its influence is irresistible, its charities are countless, it stirs the feelings to love, peace, friendship, as source any moral agent can. The songe of Beranger are hymns of love and tenderness; I have seen great whiskered Frenchmen warbling the "bosno Vielle," Soldats an pas, an pas, with tears rolling down their moustaches. At a burns festival, I have seen Scotchmen singing Burns, while the drops twinkled on their furrowed cheeks, while each rough hand was flung out to grasp its neighbor's, while They brought him a dollar.

He took it, clutched it in his long, skinny fingers, tried its sound against the bed post, and then gazed at it long and intently with his dult, leaden eye.

That day, in the hurry of business, Death had struck him, even in the street. He was harrying to collect the last month's rent, and was on the verge of the miserable court where bis tenants herded like wild beasts in their kennels—he was there with his bankbook in his hand, when death laid his hand upon him.

He was carried home to his splendid mansion. He was laid on a bed with a satin coverlet. The lawyer, the relations and the prescher were sent for. All day long he lay without speech, moving only his right hand, as though in the set of counting money.

At midnight he spoke.

negro ballad, that I confees moistened these spectacles in a most unexpected manner. They have gazed at dozens of tragedy queens, dying on the stage, and expiring in appropriate blank verse, and I never wanted to wipe them. They have looked up, with deep respect be it said, at many scores of clargymen in pulpits, and without being dimmed; and behold, a vagabond with a corked face and a banjo sings a little song, strikes a wild note which sets the whole heart thrilling with happy pity. Humor's humor is the mistress of tears, she knows the way to the fon tachrymarum, strikes in dry and rugged places with her enchanting wand, and bids the fountain gush and sparkle. She has refreshed myriads more from her natural springs, than eyes tragedy has watered from springs, than ever tragedy has watered from her pompous old urn.

BLACKGUARD POSTMASTERS IN THE SOUTH.—
The Crockett (Texas) Printer, very reasonably complains of a practice which extensively prevails among the postmasters, or their deputies, in that section, of writing obscene remarks upon the envelopes of letters passing through their offices. It says that a young lady of Piney Point received a letter upon which was written:—"Dad went a huntin' and shot a bar," but omits the remainder of the quotation, on account of its vulgarity and shot a bar," but omits the remainder of the quotation, on account of its vulgarity— and that papers have been returned to their office of publication subscribed, "Keep your d—d old paper at home." The Printer adds that it complains because, in Texas, "ladies often assist in the distribution of mall mat-ter," and they are thus favored with informa-tion, which, it is to be presumed, they might very profitably and pleasantly dispense with.

courts in the outskirts. He had iron mines in this state copper mines on the lakes somewhere, he had golden interests in California. His name was bright upon the record of twenty banks, he had a half dozen papers in his pay.

He knew but one crime—to be in debt without the power to pay.

He knew but one crime—to get money.

That crime he had never forgotten in the long way of thirty-five years.

To hunt down a debtor, to distress a tenant, to turn a few additional thousands by a sharp speculation—these were the main achievements of his life.

He was a good man—his name was upon the pew door of a volvet cushioned church.

He was a benevolent man—for every thousand dollars that he wring from the tenants of his courts, or from the debtor who writhed beneath his heel, he gave ten dollars to some benevolent institution.

THE POPE AND THE DEPOSED ITALIAN DUKES. A Turin letter of May 18, in the Opinione Nationale, gives the following important confirmation of the news that there is a coalition between the Pope, Austria and the deposed dukes against the people of Italy: "An Ancona correspondent, whose statements are always reliable, writes to me as follows: The Austrian corvette Immaculate Conception has landed here from Venice six cusnous, two mortars, thirty horses and some artillerymen. mortars, thirty horses and some artillerymen.
Who do you suppose they belong to? Why,
to the Duchess of Parma! And, moreover,
the vessel has gone back to fetch a battery and a haif of the artillery of the Duke of

GOETHE'S IDEA OF THE ENGLISH CHARAC rea.—In a recent mention of conversation between Eckermann and Goethe, a remark of between Eckermann and Goethe, a remark of the latter is thus quoted: "I should not like to affirm that the English gentlemen are cleverer, better educated, and better hearted than our young men." "That is not the point; their superiority does not lie in such things, neither does it lie in their birth and fortune; It lies precisely in their having the courage to be what nature made them. There is no halfness about them. They are complete men. Sometimes complete fools also, that I heartily admit; but even that is something, and has its weight."

Poisoning a Century and a Quarter Ago. Captain John Codman, grandfather of the Reverend John Codman, D. D., of Dorchester, fassachusetts, was poisoned some one hun Massachusetts, was poisoned some one hun-ired and twenty-five years ago, by his three slaves, Mark, Phillis and Phebe, in Charles-town. The two former were convicted, and Mark was executed on the northerly side of the Cambridge-road, where the gibbet re-mained till a short time before the Revolu-tion. Phillis was burned at the stake ten yards from the gallows. This is the only in-stance, under the authority of the law, of burning at the stake in New England.

A CHIVALRIC INEA OF LINCOLN.— The Charleston (S. C.) Mercury has seen a portrait of Mr. Lincoln, "And a horrid looking wretch he is!—sooty and scoundrelly in aspect—a cross between the nutmeg-dealer, the horse-swapper and the nightman—a creature 'flt, evidently, for petty treason, small stratagems and all sorts of spoils.' He is a lank-sided Yankee of-the uncomblest vissage, and one of the dirtiest complexion, and the nost indecent comparisons. Faught after him, what decent white man would be President'!

Four Brutat Villaina.—The Bastrop (Texas) Advertise tells us of four men who caught a boy about fourteen years old, on a charge of theft, and whipped him by turns all day long, to make him confess. They diversified their punishment by occasionally hanging him to the joist.

A LIBERAL MARGIAGE CONTRACT.—M. Mires, the Paris millionaire, it is said, assures to his daughter and son-in-law, Prince de Polignac, by marriage contract, 120,000fr, a year, two carriages with horses and servants, and an apartment in his hotel in the Rue Neuve des Mathurins.

A MASSACHURETTS STRIKE.—About 75 of the operatives in the Union Mill, at Fall River, struck on Monday for an advance of wages. They had been receiving 21 cents a "out," but demanded 21% cents. The increase was allowed them, and they returned to work yesterday.
